JEWS AND AMERICAN PRESIDENTS & POLITICS

1. · [President Chester Arthur]. CONDITION OF ISRAELITES IN RUSSIA. A MESSAGE FROM THE PRESIDENT OF THE UNITED STATES IN RESPONSE TO A RESOLUTION OF THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES, TRANSMITTING A COMMUNICATION FROM THE FROM THE SECRETARY OF STATE RESPECTING THE CONDITION OF ISRAELITES IN.

RUSSIA. Washington D.C., GPO, 1883. 1st edition thus. Original paper wrappers, 12mo, 72 pages. Singerman 3105. An extensive collection of correspondence and discussions regarding the status and persecution of the Jews of Russia and the attempts by American Government Officials to intervene in specific cases of persecution of the Jews. President Arthur's support for the Jews of Russia, was even related to the founding of the Red Cross. As Denis Brian notes in "The Elected and the Chosen: Why American Presidents Have Supported Jews and Israel" (Jerusalem, 2012) "on May 2, 1882, President Arthur sent this special message to Congress: 'In answer to the resolution of the House of Representatives...calling for correspondence respecting the condition of Israelites in Russia' [ie. this publication]....Soon after, Arthur had a new secretary of state, Frederick Frelinghuysen, who stepped up the diplomatic pressure on Russia. He wrote to the American representative there, 'The prejudice of race and creed have in our days given way to the claims of our common humanity. The people of the United States have heard with great respect the suffering of the Jewish Russians....It can scarcely be doubted that much has been done which a humane person must condemn....' Mean while, in America, a group of volunteers led by Cara Barton met in the Washington, DC, home of Adolphus Solomon, a Jewish American printer and philanthropist with special concern for Russian Jews....In Solomon's home the group drew up the constitution for a new organization called the American Red Cross. They elected Barton president, and Solomon vice president, a position he held for seven years. When in 1884 President Arthur was asked to appoint the first American delegates to the International Congress of the Red Cross in Geneva, he chose Barton and Solomon....Adolphus Solomon also helped to create the American Jewish Historical Society" (pp. 133-134). Primary source material connecting President Chester Arthur and Jews is especially scarce. OCLC lists 7 copies worldwide. Removed from later binding, Light Wear Very Good Condition. Important. (KH-8-38). [ID #40094] $1000.00.

2. • [President Harry S. The First Jew Appointed to a Presidential Cabinet Post Honors Government Support for Kishinev Pogrom Victims

6. · Straus, Oscar S; McIlvaine, Charles; Leiser, Joseph; Root, Elihu; White, Andrew Dickson; Krauskopf, Joseph [Listed Speakers].

UNVEILING AND CONSECRATION
MEMORIAL
TEMPLE OF THE REFORM
KENESETH ISRAEL

[EVENT PROGRAM]. Philadelphia, 1906. 1st edition. Original paper wrappers with glossy interior. 8vo. 6 pages, 25 cm. In English. A full program for the dedication of a large stain glass window to former Secretary of State John Hay. John Milton Hay (1838–1905) was a U.S. statesman who supported Romanian and Russian Jewish rights. Hay was a secretary of state under presidents William McKinley and Theodore Roosevelt from 1898 until his death in 1905. He was involved in U.S. diplomatic representations during this period on behalf of Romanian and Russian Jews. In 1902, at the urging of American Jewish leaders including Oscar S. Straus and Jacob H. Schiff, Hay addressed a note to the signatories of the Berlin Treaty of 1878 protesting Romania's violation of that treaty by its restrictions on Jews. Following the Kishinev pogrom of 1903, again after Jewish pressure and with an eye to domestic political considerations, Hay publicized a protest petition drawn up by B'nai B'rith. Oscar Straus, one of the speakers, was appointed to the Permanent Court of Arbitration at the Hague under President Theodore Roosevelt. He would be reappointed by President Roosevelt in 1908, President Taft in 1912, and President Wilson in 1920. Straus made history in 1906 when he became the first Jewish cabinet member after being appointed by Roosevelt as Secretary of Commerce and Labor. He also participated at the Paris Peace Conference, advising President Wilson on the interests of European Jewry. Elihu Root, another of the speakers, served as the Secretary of State under President Theodore Roosevelt and as Secretary of War under Roosevelt and President William McKinley. "He is sometimes considered to be the prototype of the 20th century political 'wise man,' advising presidents on a range of foreign and domestic issues....Root was awarded the Nobel Peace Prize in 1912." Andrew Dickson White, another speaker, "was an American historian and educator, who was the cofounder of Cornell University and served as its first president for nearly two decades....He was later appointed as a US diplomat to Germany and Russia" (Wikipedia, 2018). Published as part of the series "Sunday discourses by Rabbi Joseph Krauskopf" featuring text of addresses from the event. "Presented by Rabbi Krauskopf" noted on front cover in pencil. Congregation Keneseth Israel is the sixth oldest Reform Jewish synagogue in the United States, beginning in Philadelphia in 1847 (Wikipedia, 2018). SUBJECTS: American Jewry. ## AMERICAN LITURGY

The First Ashkenazi Machzor Printed in America

7. MACHZOR: FORM OF PRAYERS FOR THE NEW YEAR, ACCORDING TO THE CUSTOM OF THE GERMAN JEWS. WITH ENGLISH TRANSLATION. New York: Henry Frank, 1854. 1st edition. Period-style gilt tooled Morocco leather. 12mo, various pagination (aprox 475 pages total). Singerman 1284 (listing only 1 copy anywhere), Goldman 40. The first Ashkenazi

machzor printed in America. Based upon the celebrated Wolf Heidenheim edition, Henry (Chaim) Frank of New York published in 1854 2 prayer-books for the Days of Awe: This volume for the New Year, as well as a volume for Yom Kipur. This enabled the newly rising community of German American Jews to conduct services according to their own custom, as opposed to that of the Sephardic rite. Frank went on in later years to issue other volumes for other Holidays, and reflecting the customs of the Polish Jews as well. OCLC lists only 2 copies of this volume anywhere (Columbia and Yale). A set (New Year and Yom Kipur) with repairs sold at auction for over $17,000 with commissions in 2012. No copies have appeared at auction since then. Faint blindstamps on title pages. Exquisite tooled binding, an absolutely stunning copy. (KH-9-9-KK). [ID #40798] $8500.00.

8. · Moses, Isaac S.

HANUKKAH

FESTIVAL: A SONG

SERVICE FOR THE FEAST OF LIGHTS.

Chicago: Amer. Heb. Pub. House, 1893. 1st edition. Original paper wrappers. 8vo. 14 pages, 19 cm. In English. Isaac Moses (1847–1926) was a well-known U.S. Reform Rabbi who was active in American Judaism from 1870 until his death. He served in rabbinic positions in Chicago, Milwaukee, and at the Central Synagogue in NYC until he retired in 1919. "In his early days in the United States, Moses was considered a radical Reformer, but later he took a more moderate position. In 1884 he introduced his own prayer book (Tefillat Yisrael). Moses was a founding member of the Central Conference of American Rabbis and a member of the Reform committee charged with compiling an official prayer book. The appearance of the Union Prayer Book in 1894 has been credited to his personal initiative in preparing and circulating a manuscript when the committee's work seemed to be leading nowhere (EJ, 2007). HUC leader William Rosenau's copy, with his signature on the cover. SUBJECTS: Hannukah. OCLC lists 2 copies worldwide (JTS and HUC). Pages very lightly soiled with former owner's name written in pen on front wrapper. About Very Good Condition. Rare. (AMR-56-5-F). [ID #40894] $500.00.

Wachs 212. In German. Title translates as, "Hymns for the Public Service of Temple Congregation Ahawath Chesed. " Contains Hymns for Sabbath and all the festivals and also includes sermons. Adolph Huebsch (1830-1884) was born in Liptovsky Svaty Mikulas, Hungary and, while a student, participated in the Hungarian Revolution of 1848/9. He served as an Orthodox rabbi before earning a Ph. D. From the University of Prague in 1861. In that year he became the rabbi of the Neu-Synagogue in Prague. In 1866 Huebsch was invited to become head of Congregation Ahawath Chesed in New York, where he served for the remainder of his life. His interest in liturgy led him to introduce a moderate reformed ritual and to compose a new prayer book, later adopted by many other congregations, in 1872, and, a year later, as part of the same effort, this hymnal. OCLC lists no copies south of Cincinnati. Wear to spine, some internal staining and wear, good solid condition. (KH-9-15). [ID #41152] $2000.00.

OTHER IMPORTANT AMERICAN JUDAICA

The First Hebrew Book Printed in Chicago

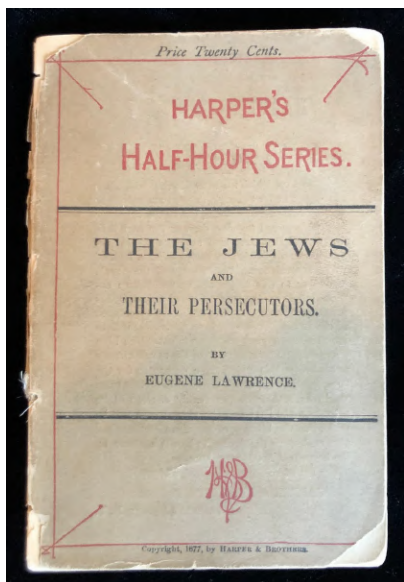

10. · Levinsohn, Jehiel Judah.

[Lewinson]. האמת העבריה : תחבולות הערות ובאורים להבין אגדות חז"ל HA-EMET HA-IVRIYAH: TAHBULOT HE'AROT U-VEURIM LE-HAVIN AGADOT RAZAL... ISRAEL'S TRUTH. Chicago: Bi-Defus N. D. 'Etilzohn, 1877. 1st edition. Later boards, 12mo, 16 pages; 23 cm. In Hebrew with some English on title page. Cited by Freirann, Mishkin and Rosenfeld as the first Hebrew book printed in Chicago. See: Leah Mishkin, "Defuse Shikago Be-ivrit Ube-Yidish" (Chicago Imprints in Hebrew and Yiddish; this work is item #1), 1952, p. 79. Singerman 2639. Goldman 689. Deinard 60. In his early groundbreaking work, "History of the Jews in America: From the Period of the Discovery of the New World to the Present Time," Wiernik cites the work as an example of "Rabbinical" works published in America (New York, 1912, p. 407). "Lewinson, a native of Vilna, lived in Chicago by 1877, when he published his Ha-Emet Ha-Ivriyah.... An opponent of pilpul, he argued that Midrashim should be understood according to peshat (plain, literal exegesis)

(pp. 9-10) .... Lewinson published Ha-Emet Ha-`Ivriyah to demonstrate that statements by various individuals found in the Midrash and Talmud could be understood only within the context of what the individuals had said elsewhere (pp. 3-9). Ha-Emet Ha-`Ivriyah also contains (pp. 10-150) annotations that Lewinson did not include in his [Sefer Hayi LeBavot] (Vienna: Bet Harnirlra h. 1872), a critical study of Bahya ibn Paquda's Hovot ha-Levavot based on textual variants.... Freirann, Mishkin (#1) and Rosenfeld (#1016) record Ha-Emet Ha-`Ivriyah as the first work published in Chicago with Hebrew type" though Goldman and Wachs also indicate that another Hebrew work was also published in Chicago that same year (Goldman, p. 615) SUBJECT(S): Aggada. 14. · Felsenthal, Bernhard. ZUR PROSELYTENFRAGE IM JUDENTHUM.

Chicago, E. Rubovits, 1878. 1st Edition. later paper wrappers, 8vo, 48 pages. Singerman 2688.
Bernhard Felsenthal, (1822–1908) was a U.S.
Reform rabbi. Felsenthal was born in Munchweile, Germany and taught in Jewish schools before settling in the U.S. in 1854. There Felsenthal served a congregation in Madison, Indiana, as officiant and teacher; then in 1858 he moved to Chicago as clerk in a banking house, while also devoting himself to rabbinical and theological study. Deeply influenced by David Einhorn, Felsenthal became one of the first protagonists of Reform Judaism in the Midwest. He was a strong opponent of slavery and refused to accept a pulpit in Mobile, Alabama. He was a founder and secretary of the Chicago Juedisches Reformverein. A statement of Reform views which he published in 1859, Kol Kore ba-Midbar: Ueber Juedische Reform, attracted some attention, and when the Reformverein developed into the Sinai Congregation, he became its first rabbi (1861). He was ordained by Einhorn and Samuel Adler. In 1864 Felsenthal became rabbi of the newly formed Zion Congregation, which he headed until his retirement in 1887. When questions on ritual came to him, he generally took an advanced Reform view. In several instances he dissented from the proposals of Isaac M. Wise. Thus, he strongly opposed the establishment of a rabbinical seminary, believing that conditions in America did not provide a satisfactory foundation. On the other hand, he advocated Jewish day schools. In 1879 he declined a professorship at Hebrew Union College. In later years Felsenthal became concerned with the threat to the Jews in America posed by religious indifference, and feeling that the course taken by Reform was preparing a "beautiful death" for Judaism, became an enthusiastic supporter of the Zionist movement. Felsenthal was a founder of the Jewish Publication Society of America and of the American Jewish Historical Society. For more on Felsenthal, see E. Felsenthal (ed.), Bernhard Felsenthal, Teacher in Israel (1924), includes extracts from his writings and bibliography; Stolz, in: ccary, 18 (1908), 161; idem, in: ajhsp, 17 (1909), 218–22. Universal Jewish Encyclopedia (1941) 4: 273–274. add. bibliography: K. Olitzky, L. Sussman, and M.H. Stern, Reform Judaism in America: A Biographical Dictionary and Sourcebook (1993). OCLC: 6688190. Occasional staining, period library stamp on title page. In German with occasional Hebrew quotations, translated into German. Singerman 2346. Title translates as, "How and What Should the Sermon be preached, and how should the sermon be heard?: Two Sermons." "von Dr. M. Mielziner, Rabbiner der Gemeinde Anshi Chesed....Gehalten am 10. und am 17. Februar

5632, in der Norfolk Street Synagoge in New-York." Moses Mielziner (1828 - 1903) was president of Hebrew Union College and an "American Reform rabbi and author....In 1848...he entered the University of Berlin. He remained there until 1852, when Samuel Holdheim, who took a great interest in him, recommended him to Waren in Mecklenburg as teacher and preacher. The Orthodox reaction introduced by the 'Landrabbiner' Baruch Isaac Lipschütz in 1853 forced Mielziner, much to the regret of his congregation, to resign his position." in 1865 "he was called to the rabbinate of the Congregation Anshe Chesed in New York ("New Yorker Staats-Zeitung," 1865, No. 215). When this congregation was absorbed by the Beth-El congregation, he opened a private school, which he conducted until 1879, when he received a call as professor of Talmud and rabbinical literature from the Hebrew Union College in Cincinnati. Upon the death of Isaac Mayer Wise March 26, 1900, he became president of this institution, and held this position until his death" (Wikipedia). SUBJECT(S): Jewish sermons -- New York. Singerman, 3820. In English with some Hebrew. A report on the Jewish agricultural settlements in New Jersey founded by Russian Jews, with much on those around Bridgeton, Millville, Vineland and Salem. Moses Klein (1857-1910), a native of Hungary, was a scholar and linguist from Hungary. He was dedicated to returning Jews to "the land" through agricultural colonization. He framed the solution to the Jewish Problem as farming and colonization in America, Palestine, and in general (Gal, 1998).  doctorate in 1867. "His university studies had shattered Kohler's Orthodoxy and his doctoral thesis, Der Segen Jacobs, took such a radical viewpoint that no rabbinic position was open to him. " In 1869, at the suggestion of Abraham Geiger, Kohler moved to the United States, leading congregations first in Detroit, Chicago and New York. An anti-Zionist, active member of the Central Conference of American Rabbis and president of Hebrew Union College, he was a Reform leader. "[In 1885, ] replying to attacks by Alexander Kohut, he published a series of sermons entitled Backward or Forward (1885). The outcome was his convening of the Pittsburg Conference of Reform rabbis and its adoption of a radical program on the basis of Kohler's draft. In 1903 Kohler was appointed president of Hebrew Union College and set about immediately to improve the curriculum and to bring fresh talent to the faculty. Reid Gould, 1840. 2nd edition, Original stamped Cloth, 8vo, 23 cm. [4], xxiii, 267 pages. Singerman 0726. The 2nd edition includes a 4-page "ADVERTISEMENT TO THE SECOND EDITION, with promotional blurbs from Isaac Nordheimer, H.V. Nathan ("Minister of the Eng. and German Synagogue, Kinston, Jamaica"), Samuel H.

Turner, Geo. Bush (relative of the US presidents) and favorable reviews from 11 American periodicals, including the New Era, a New York Jewish monthly.

Mordecai Manuel was an American sheriff, playwright, diplomat, journalist, and utopian... He was the most important Jewish lay leader in New York in the early 19th century, and the first Jew born in the United States to reach national prominence." The first translation into English "was published in 1840 by Mordecai Manuel Noah and A. S. Gould. The translator was not named but was lauded by one of the four Hebraists who commented in the preface. 'To Mssrs Noah and Gould. Gentlemen - I am acquainted with the 'Book of Jasher,' having read a considerable part of it while in the hands of the translator in England. The Hebrew is very purely written, and the translator is an eminent scholar.'—

Rabbi H. V. Nathan, Kingston Synagogue, Jamaica, April 14, 1840.

Subsequently, the translator identified himself as Moses Samuel of Liverpool (1795–1860), who had obtained a copy of the 1625 Hebrew edition and become convinced that the core of this work truly was the self-same Book of the Upright referenced in Hebrew scriptures. He translated the document into English and, after the Royal Asiatic Society at Calcutta declined to publish it, sold the translation to New York City publisher Noah for £150 in 1839. Samuel later said of the absence of his name on the translation that "I did not put my name to it as my Patron [ie M.M.Noah] and myself differed about its authenticity" – Noah having had less confidence in the 1625 document than did Samuel. Even so, Noah enthusiastically claimed in his promotional materials that the historian Josephus had said of the Book of Jasher 'by this book are to be understood certain records kept in some safe place on purpose, giving an account of what happened among the Hebrews from year to year, and called Jasher or the upright, on account of the fidelity of the annals.' No such statement is found in Josephus's works. Noah's 1840 preface contained endorsements by Hebrew scholars of the day, all of whom praised the quality of the translation, but these said nothing to indicate they believed it to be the work referred to in Joshua and 2 Samuel. In fact one of them, Samuel H. Turner from Mordecai Noah's estate. It was published by J. H. Parry & Company in Salt Lake City in 1887. A number of Mormon scholars consider this Book of Jasher to be of authentic ancient Hebrew origin. Some of these scholars suggest that the book likely contains many original portions of the Sefer HaYashar referenced in the Old Testament but also has a number of added interpolations. This Joseph Hyrum Parry edition of the Book of Jasher

(1790–1861), of the General Theological Seminary in New York City, commented that 'The work itself is evidently composed in the purest Rabbinical Hebrew, with a large intermixture of the Biblical idiom', indicating he was not of the opinion that it was an ancient text.... Joseph Smith, founder of the Latter Day Saint movement, acquired a copy in 1841 or 1842 and wrote in the September 1, 1842 edition of the Times and Seasons, in reference to the patriarch Abraham: 'the book of Jasher, which has not been disproved as a bad author, says he was cast into the fire of the Chaldeans'. In 1886, Joseph Hyrum Parry of Salt Lake City acquired the rights to the translation continues to be held in high repute by many Mormons. A number of Mormons have pointed to certain portions of the book that have commonalities to parts of the Joseph Smith Translation of the Bible, particularly those parts dealing with the antediluvian period. The Bible has only scant information about pre-flood times, but both the Book of Jasher and parts of the Joseph Smith Translation of the Bible contain additional information, some of which is strikingly similar" (wikipedia). This work has become important in most pseudo-Judeo Christian movements, including the Rosicrucians and modern New Age movements.

Reporting on the Bnai Brith

Convention, the Menorah Monthly ("The Menorah: A Monthly Magazine for the Jewish Home") reported, "The essay of Bro. Henry Hanaw of Mobile, Ala., 'Jew Hating and Jew Baiting,' was an eloquent and glowing tribute to our race and received, as it merited, general commendation and approval. The oration by Bro. Charles Frenkel, of Galveston, 'I.O.B.B. The Offspring of Judaism,' excited much interest, and Bro. Frenkel at once reached a high place in the ranks of the gifted orators of our District" (Vol 17, 1894, p. 404). This work is cited in John Higham's 1957 article, "Anti-Semitism in the Gilded Age: A Reinterpretation" (Mississippi Valley Historical Review Vol. 43, No. 4); Then, interestingly, in his 1987 book "Uneasy at Home: Antisemitism and the American Experience" (Columbia), Leonard Dinnerstein references Higham's citation of Hanaw's work but calls it "an essay I have been unable to obtain" (p. 75). Following his death, Hanaw (1856-1916) was eulogized in The Jewish Ledger as "one of the most prominent and highly respected lawyers of Mobile" (Feb 18, 1916, p. 22), and the Hanaw family remains prominent in Alabama Jewish life. No copies listed in OCLC; as noted above, the single Singerman listing, at JTSA, is no longer listed in their catalog. We could not locate a single other "findable" copy. Henry Ward Beecher (1813 – 1887) was an American Congregationalist clergyman, social reformer, and speaker, known for his support of the abolition of slavery, his emphasis on God's love, and his 1875 adultery trial.... Several of his brothers and sisters became well-known educators and activists, most notably Harriet Beecher Stowe, who achieved worldwide fame with her abolitionist novel Uncle Tom's Cabin.....Over the course of his ministry, he...grew interested in social reform, particularly the abolitionist movement. In the years leading up to the Civil War, he raised money to purchase slaves from captivity and to send rifles—nicknamed ‘Beecher's Bibles’—to abolitionists fighting in Kansas and Nebraska.... After the war, Beecher supported social reform causes such as women's suffrage and temperance. He also championed Charles Darwin's theory of evolution, stating that it was not incompatible with Christian beliefs.... WITH DUTCH TRANSLATION]. Amsterdam, E. Mozes Azn., 1941. Original orange boards, Square 8vo, V, 90 [1] pages. 21 cm. Hebrew and Dutch on facing pages, with Geismar's unique stick figure illustrations. The last Haggadah printed in occupied Western Europe. Yudlov 3845; CD-EPI 0187487. The second title page notes "Amsterdam, 1941." Bound in orange cloth with front cover illustration. With the now famous black and white modernist 'stick-figure' Illustrations by Otto Geismar: "The Geismar illustrations are among the most unusual ever to adorn a Haggadah text"

(Yerushalmi). Otto (Nathan) Geismar (1873 – 1957) was "an art teacher at the Berlin Jewish Community school (later called 'middle school') for boys from 1904 till 1936. In 1930 the Jewish community granted Geismar a scholarship for a several-month-long stay in Palestine. In 1939 Geismar and his wife emigrated to Brazil and, after the Second World War, they both moved to England to be closer to their daughter. Geismar's first published work is closely related to his profession: his book Tier-Schnell-Zeichnen was published in Berlin in 1926 as a drawing manual. A year after his Haggadah, in 1928, Geismar's biblical illustrations for children were published as Bilder Bibel by Rubin Mass, again in Berlin (and republished by the same in 1940 in Jerusalem; later in Israel the illustrations accompanied books of children's poetry and rhymes by L. Avishai and by L. Kipnis). Still in Berlin, in the 1930s, Geismar illustrated and designed an edition of the Biblical Book of Esther in scroll form (as read on Purim), which was published by Dr. Herbert Löwenstein in Berlin and Tel-Aviv in 1936, as well as other texts. The Haggadah with Geismar's illustrations was published in Hebrew/Aramaic alone and in two separate bilingual editions with the original text and a translation into German and Dutch.... Geismar's early style has been characterized as 'minimalist' and 'expressionistic'; his Haggadah illustrations are marked by bold typography, radically simplified lines, freedom of treatment of traditional themes (e.g., the illustration for the song Had Gadya) and humour (the wicked son as a mocker who thumbs his nose at the wise one; the Plagues of Egypt; a child overcome by the wine and festivities at the end of the seder banquet, etc.). Geismar's optimistic 'logo' can be seen at the end of the book: a little bird chirping in a tree next to an open cage, with the Hebrew initials Aleph Gimel = Otto Geismar" (see <http://www.jewishmuseum.cz/en/apredmet.php?datum=04&rok=10>). Very Good Condition (Hag-19-35A). [ID #38539] $550.00.

64 pages. 21 cm. Reprinted in early 1944 for Jewish refugees in Switzerland with some additional notations. In Hebrew and German in parallel columns (with diacritic vowel marks under the Hebrew, and with Yiddish translation between Hebrew). Original 1938 title page, with verso 1944 German title page: “Den jüdischen Flüchtlingen in der Schweiz; Zur Feier des [Pesakh]-Festes im Jahre 5704 [1944]; überreicht vom Schweizerischen Israelitischen Gemeindebund.” (“For the Jewish Refugees in Switzerland; For the celebration of Pesakh in the year 5704 [1944]; presented by the Swiss Federation of Jewish Communities). Copyright by Lehrberger & Co. of Frankfurt.”) A European-published hagada from the darkest period of the Holocaust, produced specifically for those feeling the inferno. During 1943 and 1944, the extermination camps were working at a furious rate to kill the hundreds of thousands of people shipped to them by rail from almost every country within the German sphere of influence, and by the spring of 1944, up to 8,000 people were being gassed every day at Auschwitz (USHMM, 2012). Passover 1944 began on April 8, the day that the roundups of the Jews of Carpatho-Ruthenia and northern Hungary started. On April 14, the last day of the Holiday, László Endre & László Baký (German-installed heads of the Ministry of the Interior) and Eichmann made the official decision to deport all the Jews of Hungary.

With ten illustrations; an early 19th century German Orthodox Haggadah originally compiled by Wolf Heidenheim in 1822. Published for German-Jewish refugees in Switzerland under the auspices of the Swiss Federation of Jewish Communities, founded in 1904 to help protect the general interest of Jews in Switzerland; during the second world war, the Federation helped support the refugee community in Switzerland: “Prior to and during the Second World War, Switzerland gave refuge to about 23,000 Jewish refugees although the government decided that Switzerland would serve only as a country of transit. These Jews were protected during the Holocaust due to Swiss neutrality. The Jewish refugees, however, did not receive the financial support from the government that non-Jewish refugees received. Many more Jews were prevented from entering, effectively shutting the border." (Jewish Virtual Library; Switzerland). The publishers, Goldschmidt, issued an earlier printing in 1940 (listed in one library on OCLC), no copies of this issue (1944) are listed in OCLC. Subjects: Haggada shel Pesah. HAGADAH SHEL PESAH [HAGGADAH SHEL PESACH]. Tel Aviv, The Joint, 1947-1948. No Date [1947-1948] 1st Edition Thus. Original Paper Wrappers, Tall 12mo, [1], 32, [1] pages. In Hebrew. "Printed for the American Jewish Joint Distribution Committee." Printed in Tel Aviv for the use of Holocaust survivors in the American DP camps in Germany. During the Holocaust, as European Jewry was pushed to the brink of annihilation by Nazi Germany, the American Jewish Joint Distribution Committee was the main financial benefactor towards Jewish emigration from Europe and rescue attempts of Jews from Nazi-controlled territories. From the outbreak of World War II through 1944, American Jewish Joint Distribution Committee made it possible for more than 81,000 Jews to emigrate out of Nazi-occupied Europe to safety. JDC also smuggled aid to Jewish prisoners in labor camps and helped finance the Polish Jewish underground in preparations for the 1943 Warsaw Ghetto revolt. In addition, JDC was a major channel keeping American Jewish leaders informed—often in detail—about the holocaust. Yudlov 4109; Yaari 2370 or 2371; Berman (LOC) no. 1112. Jewish History Foundation,. No Date (1954?).

Presume 1st separate edition. Original paper wrappers. 9x18 cm, folded. 1 leaf folded twice, [6] pages. In English with some Hebrew. Reprinted from [American Jewish] Congress Weekly.

Important first separate edition explaining this important addition to many Passover Hagadahs, as a way to remember the martyrs of the Holocaust. This pamphlet details Lears's experience recognizing and remembering the 6 million Jewish victims of the Holocaust as part of a

Seder, and the prayer/ reading to add. "The name Rufus Lears stood for Israel Goldberg, a prolific writer on the history of the Jews.... Mr. Lears's best-received book was 'The Jews in America: A History,' published in 1954 by the World Publishing Company. In it, he supplied detailed information on the major events and personalities on the American Jewish scene. He also wrote "History of the Jewish People," in 1949, a 726 page book covering the 4,000 years from Abraham's pilgrimage from Chaldea to the establishment of the State of Israel. One work that has gained some acceptance is 'Ritual of Remembrance,' which he prepared in 1953 as a ritual to be observed at Passover Seders.... He belonged to the Authors Guild, the Jewish Academy of Arts and Sciences, and the Zionist Organization of America." (NYT) No copies in OCLC. Small chip along 2 creases, else clean copy. SYNAGOGUE, MAY 22, 1944. London: Office Of The Chief Rabbi, 1944. 1st edition, original wrappers, 12mo. 7 pages. 15 cm. On the 1-year anniversary of the uprising, Rabbi Hertz discusses the world's reaction, asking, "What has been--we wonder--the reaction in Allied lands to this stark Satanism " He praises church leaders among the few who were vigorous in their protests, answering rhetorically, stating, "Well the Press--with few honourable exceptions--passed it over in silence; and the larger public has thus remained unmoved by this mass crucifixion of a whole people. Only men and women of light and leading realised that Nazism was a maniacal assault on all the ethical foundations of society--pity, decency, and respect for life; an attempt to make a clean sweep of the sacred Heritage of Man. Foremost among them were the Heads of the Churches, with their passionate plea that, as the crimes were unheard-of, unheard-of measures were called for to stop them. " (page 6). The author, Joseph Herman Hertz (1872-1946, London), was "chief rabbi of the United Hebrew Congregations of the Commonwealth and author of books on Judaism and of influential commentaries on the Bible expressing a fundamentalist viewpoint....Hertz was elected to his post as chief rabbi in England in 1913. His career in that position was a colourful one. He attacked the newly formed Liberal Jewish movement (a movement more or less equivalent to U. S. Reform Judaism). In Yiddish with some Russian. Title translates to “Lublin Extermination-Camp Majdanek.” Soviet war correspondent and poet Konstantin Simonov’s booklet on the atrocities of the Majdanek camp, published simultaneously in several languages, was only the second monograph published on the atrocities at Majdanek.

Simonov (1915-1979) was a highly decorated poet, novelist, playwright, and war correspondent whose works were widely known (Wikipedia, 2018). A Polish-Soviet Special Criminal Court was established in Lublin in August 1944 in order to investigate the Nazi crimes in the Majdanek extermination camp, with Simonov covering the proceedings as the basis for this work. The Majdanek concentration camp was established on Heinrich Himmler's order and operated from October 1, 1941 until it was liberated by the Soviet Army on July 22, 1944. It is known to be the best preserved Nazi concentration camp of the Holocaust, as the Germans did not have enough time to destroy the evidences of their crimes. The Commission for investigating the German crimes was established in August 1944 and soon they published this booklet in several languages. Despite of the importance of this statement it must be mentioned that the Commission made many erroneous assumptions regarding the duration of the camp or number of people killed at Majdanek, probably because they were motivated rather by political and propaganda agenda than by a search for historical facts. The total number of the victims is still controversial, in this report 1.5 million victims of different nationalities were counted, however according to the latest researches there were 79, 000 victims, 59, 000 of whom were Jews. [Kranz, T.: Bookkeeping of Death and Prisoner Mortality at Majdanek. Pp. 81-110. In: Silberklang, D. (ed.): Yad Vashem Studies. Vol. 35: 1. Jerusalem, 2007.]. ## A "Special Prayer" from Chicago's Secular and Religious Jews...with No Copies in OCLC-WORLDCAT

No date [1941-1944]. Presume 1st edition, single fold pamphlet, 12mo,

4 pages. In Yiddish and Hebrew.

Title translates as "Special Prayer."

Exceedingly scarce Holocaust-era request by the Chicago Committee for Human Rights Against Nazism for special prayers to be said for the Jewish holiday of Shemini Azeret.

The committee assures the reader that the call for special prayers is made in coordination with the Rabbis and with the support of the Chicago Jewish community: "Di spetsiele tefitah iz oysgeshtelt gevoren oyf dos forlang fun di shikago anti-nazi komite baym merkaz rabonim un vert geshikht tsu oykh mit der guthaysung fun die shikago kehilah mit der rekamendatsye az di tefilah zol gezont veren far Hazkhrot geshemot in tog fun Shemini Atzeret!" This Yiddish call to prayer and explanation fills the first page, while the middle two pages contain the prayer, and the rear panel notes, in Hebrew, that "The prayer is copied from the genius Hida za'l from his book Avodat HaKedesh. And save them from pasture and famine and captivity and plunder, from all fear and from sorrow, and the species and the zealots will subdue and play..." The result is clearly a religiously-oriented "Human Rights Against Nazism" request that was also hoping to also win participation from less observant Jews. With it's dual Hebrew-Yiddish text, it's assurances of support from the Rabbis and from the community, its explanation of the prayer, and it's request in Yiddish to "please do not throw this prayer in the trash" the pamphlet is accessible to, and respectful of, both communities. Shemini Azeret is the Jewish Holiday which comes following Rosh HaShanah and Yom Kippur, arriving at the end of Sukkot and the day before Simchas Torah when the weekly reading of the Torah starts over again with Geneis (Berishis in Yiddish). A very interesting attempt from Chicago to thread the needle of appealing to religious and more secular (but Yiddish speaking, so not Reform) Jews in a joint effort to pray in response to Nazi atrocities in Europe. We could find no copies listed in OCLC nor specifically at YIVO, nor anywhere else. Perhaps a unique surviving copy. Some stray marks and small tear to outer margin, but of toning, about Very Good- Condition. Extremely rare and important. (YID-33-88). [ID #41780] $750.00.

"Der Nister—which means 'the Hidden One, a name that impels readers to seek the author in his literary creations—was the nom de plume of Pinkhes Kaganovich, who lived from 1884 to 1950. Born in Berdichev, Ukraine, he initially began writing in Hebrew, but it was in Yiddish literature that he made a lasting impression on contemporary Yiddish writers and critics. The ICOR yearbook was published from 1932 to 1936. This issue contains well over 1300 names in Yiddish of Jewish supporters, generally part of part- or full-page ads taken out by IKOR branches or related groups. For example, a two-page "Tsvayte Aptaylung: Bronzvil "Ikor"...Bagrisungen fun Yehidim [sic]" ("Part Two: Brownsville [Brooklyn] Greetings from the Jews") on pages 70-71, with list of 300 names below, presumably all members of the Brownsville IKOR branch which had each donated money to place the ad to support IKOR efforts. English editorial on the history of the ICOR, a poem by Mayakovsky, and essays on "Biro-Bidjan in socialist construction", "Palestine and Biro-Bidjan", "Report of the Expedition to Biro-Bidjan." Yiddish sections includes lengthy reports on the ICOR's activities and American support, proposed architectural and agricultural projects in Biro-Bidjan, illustrations of proposed architectural projects as well as completed structures, multiple charts and graphs detailing economic and material aspects to agricultural projects; with sixty pages containing hundreds of advertisements and encouraging words from businesses and individuals all over the United States in support of ICOR.

In another related publication, the American leadership of ICOR stated: "This organisation is one of a body of similar organisations carrying on the same work in 22 countries. This work is to propagate in this country the complete reconstruction of the Jewish life in the U.S.S.R. What is actually the position of the Jewish masses in the U.S.S.R.? While in Germany, Poland and Romania new waves of pogroms and persecution indicate the terrible plight of millions of Jews in Europe, we have in contrast to this in one part of the world which covers one-sixth of the world's surface, a completely different picture. There, in the Soviet Union, where a new social order is being built the Jews have achieved an economic and political freedom which the Jews in the most democratic capitalist country have never known. Within 10 years the whole mode of Jewish life in the U.S.S.R. has been completely reconstructed. From an isolated and persecuted caste of economic parasites they have been transformed into healthy productive workers on an equal footing with all other citizens in the Soviet Union. The five flourishing Jewish National Regions and the Jewish Autonomous Territory of Biro Bidjan show what the erstwhile 'Luft Mensch' has accomplished under a government which stands for the complete freedom and self-determination of all its nationalities. The new Jewish life in the U.S.S.R. stands out as a beacon for those struggling and persecuted Jews in Fascist and semi-Fascist countries. This is the task which ICOS has set itself and which 'New Life' will help considerably in carrying out - of showing more and more people the way the Jewish problem has been solved in the U.S.S.R. In a period like the present, when some of the bloodiest pages in Jewish history are being written, an organisation like ICOS, carrying on such important work, should have the support of every progressive Jew in this country."

CESKÉHO NÁRODA: MALÁ PEVNOST

TEREZÍN. Bohusovice N. O. Výbor Pro Smuteční Oslavy Litomerice Lovosice, 1946. Original colorful decorated wrappers, 8vo. [39] pages, with illustrations throughout. In Czech. Other Titles:

"Terezín." Includes 32 photographs total, from immediately after liberation showing the bodies, the suffering endured, the post-liberation burials and burial ceremonies, and the Nazi officials responsible. "Terezin was a concentration camp 30 miles north of Prague in the Czech Republic during the World War II. It was originally a holiday resort reserved for Czech nobility. Terezín is contained within the walls of the famed fortress Theresienstadt, which was created by Emperor Joseph II of Austria in the late 18th century and named in honor of his mother, Empress Maria Theresa. By 1940 Nazi Germany had assigned the Gestapo to turn Terezín into a Jewish ghetto and concentration camp. It held primarily Jews from Czechoslovakia, as well as tens of thousands of Jews deported chiefly from Germany and Austria, as well as hundreds from the Netherlands and Denmark. More than 150,000 Jews were sent there, including 15,000 children, and held there for months or years, before being sent by rail transports to their deaths at Treblinka and Auschwitz extermination camps in occupied Poland, as well as to smaller camps elsewhere. Less than 150 children survived. Although Terezin was not an extermination camp, about 33,000 died in the ghetto. This was mostly due to the appalling conditions arising out of extreme population density, malnutrition and disease. About 88,000 inhabitants were deported to Auschwitz and other extermination camps. At the end of World War II, there were 17,247 survivors of Terezin (including some who had survived the death camps). Many educated Jews were inmates of Terezin. Unlike other camps, Terezin's detainees included scholars, philosophers, scientists, visual artists, and musicians of all types, some of whom had achieved international renown, and many of these contributed to the camp's cultural life. The Nazis kept a tight rein on the world's perception of activities within Terezin. In a propaganda effort designed to fool the Western allies, the Nazis publicized the camp for its rich cultural life. " (terezin.org 2018). Early post-war publication discussing Theresienstadt and crimes committed there by Heinrich Jockel, a German officer that was later found guilty of war crimes. "Jöckel, after his apprenticeship as a soldier in the First World War, worked after his dismissal from military service as a worker. In 1931 he joined the NSDAP. In the fall of 1939 Jöckel was the camp commander in the concentration camp Skrochowitz in Troppauer Ländchen. Jöckel, who previously worked for the Prague Gestapo, became Commander of Theresienstadt in June 1940, where he was involved in the mistreatment and murder of detainees. In addition, he is said to have denied Jewish inmates medical help and assigned them to the heaviest work crews. Jöckel, whose family was in the area, had at the beginning of May 1945 53 inmates executed. On May 5, 1945 Jöckel left Theresienstadt with his family, three days before Theresienstadt was freed by the Red Army.... On 1 July 1945 Jöckel was arrested by the American counter-intelligence service and delivered on 26 January 1946 to Czechoslovakia. Drawing by Peregrine, captioned "They sometimes return the Ashes. " This is a verbatim translation of a pamphlet published by the Movement of the Working Masses of Poland (W. R. N.), part of the Polish underground resistance. "This pamphlet deals with the present, the hideous and tragic present. It makes painful readingâ€. This stark record of life-and death- in the notorious Oswiecim concentration camp reveals the cunning, calculated brutality by which the Germans are attempting to destroy the Polish nation. It is difficult for civilised people to comprehend the racial theory by which the Germans justify their policy of extermination in Poland. Biology, morality, and commonsense alike refute that senseless theory. But it is still more difficult to understand why those who are destined by their oppressors to die, must first be tortured by all manner of revolting cruelties- unless it be that the oppressors hope to have the ghoulish satisfaction of reducing their victims to their own level of savagery before they die. In the Soviet territory occupied by by the Germans there is literally not a single town, not a single village and not a single inhabited point from which the German fascist freebooters have not driven into slavery a considerable section of men, women, young persons and children. Early (1943) expose and condemnation of Nazi atrocities in the occupied Soviet Union. Likely published 1943, as the end of the booklet says "(signed) Molotov// Moscow, May 11, 1943." Introduction by Jessica Smith. "With a dignity and restraint that seem almost superhuman this note by Foreign Commissar Molotov sets forth fresh proofs of the subhuman savagery of the Hitlerites. In previous notes to the United Nations Molotov has presented documentary evidence of the fiendish atrocities visited on Soviet citizens in the Nazi-occupied areas. In this one he gives details of the manner in which millions of Soviet citizens are driven into slavery. As they systematically lay waste the Russian towns and villages during occupation or retreat, the German marauders simultaneously seek to enslave or destroy all of the Soviet people who fall into their clutches. The majority of able-bodied citizens, young and old, men and women, girls and boys, are forcibly shipped into Germany. Those who resist are murdered. The rest are packed like cattle into railroad cars. Those who sicken on the awful journey are thrown out. The railroad embankments are littered with their bodies all the way. In this letter to Parke-Bernet Galleries he says, " In Germany and Austria the Allied Armies recovered a vast quantity of miscellaneous personal property which had been confiscated by the Nazis from their victims. The disposition of that portion of the property which could not be identified either as to individual ownership or national origin was provided for under Article 8 of Part I of the Final Act of the Paris Conference on Reparation, and the Five Power Agreement of June 14, 1946. These International Agreements directed the transfer of the unidentifiable looted property to an appropriate international refugee organization, to be liquidated and the proceeds used for the rehabilitation and resettlement of non-repatriable victims of German action--- persons who suffered heavily at the hands of the Nazis but who were unable to claim the assistance of any Government receiving reparation from Germany. The property which you have undertaken to sell is a substantial part of the unidentifiable looted property, and is officially designated in the above-mentioned Treaties as 'non-monetary gold.' ” Subjects: Jewelry -- Catalogs. A sermon preached on New Year's Morning, Saturday, September 8th, 1945 before Congregation Keneseth Israel of Allentown, Pennsylvania by Rabbi Braunstein, Ph. D. "This sermon was preached before the release on Sept. 30, 1945 of Earl G. Harrison's Report to President Truman on the conditions of refugees and displaced persons in western Europe, and of the subsequent interchange of correspondence between the President and General Eisenhower. All of these strengthen and confirm the point-of-view expressed in this sermon. ” (page 8) Braunstein doesn't think that the Jews who fled should have to go back to their former homes. He says, "The Intergovernmental Committee on Refugees, of which our Government is a member, recently declared that the Jewish 'D. P. ' will be given the opportunity to learn 'more about conditions in his country and give the governments more time to satisfy their nationals that they can return to their countries with the prospect of leading a healthy, normal life before reaching the conclusion that the person must be treated permanently as non-repatriable. ' These are elegant words to conceal the real decision of the Intergovernmental Committee on Refugees. That decision is this: 'Let the Jews cool off their heels in the German concentration camps until they realize they must return to their former homes'. The simplest truth is that these Jews are afraid to return to their former homes. They who have cheated death for so many years at the hands of the Germans do not want to die at the hands of the Germans, do not want to die at the hands of their former co-citizens. And if their experiences in Poland and in Slovakia and elsewhere are any indication of how the wind is blowing, they have a right to fear. They have a right to refuse to return to their former homes. I have been wondering whether the late President Roosevelt's promise of a world in which there would be freedom from fear will ever have meaning to the displaced Jews of Europe. An early post-Holocaust address delivered to the Commonwealth Club of California, at the Palace Hotel, San Francisco, April 5, 1946, by Rabbi Irving F. Reichert of Congregation Emanu-El, San Francisco, opposing Zionism on general principal but calling for Palestine to be an a democratic haven for Jewish Holocaust refugees. This address has been privately printed through the courtesy of a number of friends. He talks about the experience of the Jews in the Holocaust and particularly focuses on Zionism, and the issues that arise. He also clarifies that the Jews are not a nationality nor a nation, and he argues that with the predictions of the low percentage of Jews that would end up in a Jewish state, there won't be a Jewish nationality even with a Jewish state. He says, "The American Jewish Community today presents a paradox as far as Palestine is concerned. We are hopelessly divided in our views regarding the political future of Palestine. Many of us are unalterably opposed for reasons of deep conviction, to the establishment of a Jewish state. We are, however, completely united in our conviction that as a democratic commonwealth Palestine can and should provide a home for our disinherited and downtrodden fellow Jews who seek its shelter." American League Against War and Fascism, with warnings primarily for the US. Includes form for membership. "These aspects of Fascism are beginning to develop here [in the US]. Our National Recovery program is concentrating authority in the hands of the executives. But the facts of wages, prices, the administration of the codes and the labor boards show that the real power is being concentrated still more in the hands of the most powerful and repressive monopolistic groups of financiers and industrialists. All the resources of the state are being used in the attempt to restore the broken down capitalist system. Again both labor and capital are being regulated. But increasingly, the right to strike, the only real defense of labor, is being taken away, and the alleged protection of the government substituted for it. But in the agencies of government which are supposed to administer this protection, labor finds the employers and their representatives entrenched in power. This taking away of the resistance power of labor is an infallible sign of Fascism. "

"The following pamphlet is based on Dr. Alfred Rosenberg's Unmoral im Talmud (published by Deutscher Volksverlag, Bayreuth), which has a wide circulation in Germany. The author's influence is not only felt, as the close friend and associate of Herr Hitler who appointed him Kulturleiter; his writing is used by the specialized antisemitic organs of the Nazi party and Government of which 'Der Stürmer' is the outstanding example. Indirectly, through Baldur von Schirach and in other ways, Dr. Rosenberg's writings exercise a great and steady influence on the whole of German youth. This scurrilous attack on the Talmud is dealt with in a lengthy Foreword by Dr. Herbert Danby, Canon of Christ Church and Regius Professor of Hebrew in the University of Oxford. London: Fred Stone, 1945. 1st Separate Edition.

Original paper outside pages, no cover, as issued.

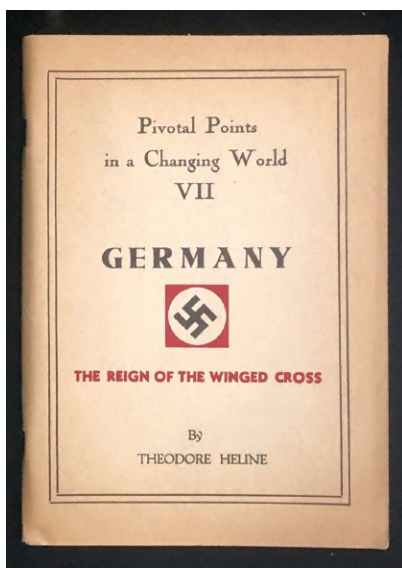

8vo booklet, 11+ [1] pages. Reprinted from the Soviet Information Bulletin in Washington.

Includes article "Jew Baiting Must Be Wiped Out: No Mercy for Murderers," by Komarov, who was the most respected name in systematic botany in the USSR, ex-president of the Academy of Sciences, a deputy of the Supreme Soviet, and holder of the highest Soviet civil award-a "Hero of Socialist Labour." Also contains smaller sections "Conference of European Jewry," "Fight for Humanity," "Meeting of Jewish Communists," "French Jews Reorganise," and "Commentary." The general theme is uniting forces and countries to fight against antisemitism. From Komarov's article, "To keep silence about this is to deliver our children to death. In this matter, if any country gives shelter to the Hitlerites or their ideas, in the shape of discriminatory legislation in the shape of racial organisation or racial Press, it is no longer an internal affair of that country. If your neighbour uncloses in his backyard a container with poison gases which threaten to spread over the entire town, you will not waste time by asking for permission to enter his backyard, you will do so to avert death for thousands of people. Racial ideas are more dangerous than any poison gas. It is our generation's duty to the future, to the cause of the progress of civilisation and humanity, not only to put out the smoking fire of Fascism but to uncover and extinguish every smouldering coal of it." Los Angeles: New Age Press, 1940. Original stiff paper wrappers. 8vo, 48 pages. Interesting "ambiguous" defense of Nazi Germany from just prior to US entry into WWII. The author discusses the history of Germany, the Nazi party, and other groups with similar ideas, with a special examination of Nazi philosophy, all from an explicitly Christian perspective, with many references to Jesus Christ. While not supportive of Nazism, the book is also not very critical either. "We cannot condone the crimes of the Nazi regime. Yet, we can have forgiveness in our hearts for those who have committed them even as we have for the Inquisitors of the Medieval Church who in their zeal for God's kingdom subjected literally millions to torture and death in the name of a religion born of love and mercy. In 1925, together with Yosel Cutler, [he] founded the 'Modicot' marionette theater. [He] Wrote plays, children's stories and poems" (YIVO, 2018). Author Yitzchak Rayz (1885-1943), "better known by his pen name Moyshe Nadir was an American Yiddish language writer and satirist.... In 1898, at the age of 13, Rayz immigrated to New York and adopted the Americanized name Isaac Reiss. Within a few years his work was published widely in the New York Yiddish press, under a variety of pseudonyms, including Rinnalde Rinaldine, Dilensee Mirkarosh, Der Royzenkavalir, Doctor Hotzikl, and, finally, Moishe Nadir. The name 'Nadir' is a Yiddish expression meaning 'here you are' or 'that's for you, ' but can also mean 'take this and choke on it. ' As a teenager, he wrote for Der Groyser Kundes (The Big Prankster) and later co-edited Der Yiddisher Gazlon (The Yiddish Bandit) with Jacob Adler. He wrote for an assortment of Communist Yiddish publications including the Frayhayt (Freedom) newspaper and its successor Morgn Frayhayt (Morning Freedom) and the magazines Der Signal (The Signal) and Der Hammer (The Hammer). When his sharp-tongued theater reviews caused him to be banned from theatrical productions, he resorted to attending plays in disguise. His own plays were performed by Maurice Schwartz's Yiddish Art Theater, Zuni Maude and Yosel Cutlers Modicut puppet theater, Artef (Arbeter Teater Faraband, Workers Theater Alliance) and the Federal Theater Project. Among his better known poems are the erotic Vilde Royzen (Wild Roses, 1915) and his 1932 Rivington Strit (Rivington Street). After a long association with the Frayhayt and the Morgn Frayhayt, Rayz began to distance himself from the Communist cause with the onset of the show trials in the Soviet Union and publicly broke with the Morgn Frayhayt in the wake of the Molotov-Ribbentrop Pact. He set out his reasons in 'Di, vos blayben mit der Morgn Frayhayt' ('Those who stay with the Morgn Frayhayt') in response to Morgn Frayhayt editor Moissaye Olgin's 'Di vos gayen avek' ('Those who leave'). Rayz discusses his relationship to the Communist Party in his posthumous 'Moyde Ani' (Wikipedia, 2019). SUBJECT (S): Yiddish literature -- 20th century. Four volumes bound in two; period quarter leather (Cloth with leather spine), and Cloth, 4to (large), 232+ 184 and 106 + [80] pages. Vols I & II printed by the grandsons of the Slavita Rav, Rabbi Chanina Lipa, and Rabbi Yehoshua Heschel Shapira. Each section has a separate title page in red and black ink. Later on, volumes 3 & 4 were published by Hirschensohn in Jerusalem. Isaac ben Moses Of Vienna, (ca. 1180—ca. 1250, Vienna), was a “medieval codifier of Jewish law (Halakha) whose vast compilation, Or Zaru'a ('Light Is Sown'), was widely quoted in later Halakhic works. Or Zaru'a is also valued by historians for its descriptions of Jewish life in medieval France, Germany, and Italy. By his own testimony, Isaac was born in Bohemia. Although poor he was determined to become an educated man and embarked upon a nomadic life that brought him into contact with the most respected Jewish scholars of Bohemia, France, and Germany. The Or Zaru'a is a compendium of the knowledge he gathered from eminent rabbis—some in the form of correspondence—and his own commentaries and responsa (answers to specific questions) on matters of law. The original manuscript, so vast that it presented a problem for copyists, was copied in sections, over a long period of time, and was widely disseminated only by means of quotations in the works of other Halakhists. Of the surviving manuscripts no two are alike in sequence, thus obscuring any order intended by the author. The first two parts did not appear in published form until 1862” (Encyclopedia Britannica). OCLC:872585201. Some wear to boards, tiny bit of worming to inside margin (at spine) of a few pages as often found, attractive, about Good+ Condition. (RAB-66-24). [ID #41577] $400.00.

ASHER NIDPESU BI-YEME KEDEM BE-KIRYAT KUSHTANDINAH VE-'ATAH POH... Mantovah [Mantua]: Bi-Defus Shelomoh Mi-Nortsi, 1597. Later boards. 8vo. 72 pages, 21 cm. In Hebrew. Title translates to "Response of the Geonim." Third edition of the Geonic responsa, following the Prague first edition printed in 1590 and a 1596 Mantua edition. Four hundred responsa from the geonim, heads of the talmudic academies, mainly in Babylonia, in Sura and Pumbedita, in the period after the redaction of the Talmud. The ge'onim, undisputed halakhic authorities of the time, received many thousands of inquiries from throughout the Jewish world encompassing all aspects of Jewish life and learning. The title page has the ornate Prague frame with Moses holding the tablets of the Law at the top, cherubim on the either side of him, and along the sides two bearded figures above additional cherubim, a single Magen David on the right, and at the bottom two lions about the spread hands of the Kohen.

On the verso is a preamble from Rabbi Solomon ben Menahem Kabuli and below that a two tailed crowned lion, the emblem of Bohemia. Next are the contents by subject, in two columns (6 f.), the text, and then verse in praise of the work, and, on the last page, epilogues from Rabbi Menahem Aguzi and the editor, Rabbi Ezekiel Moses ben Jacob. The final one makes its first appearance in this printing. The text, in square letters in a single column, is unpaginated. Both queries and responses are concise, often simplifying a complex law in an epigrammatic manner. The names of the submitter, in contrast to later responsa, are omitted. The contents, by subject, are: tefilla and tefillin; Shabbat, Yom Tov and Pesah; the sanctity of the Kohen; first born and milah; honoring parents and proper conduct; laws related to dining; forbidden foods; usury; bans and lashes; gentile wine; oaths; illicit relations; betrothal; divorce and refusal of a minor; ketubbot; levirate marriage and halitzah; charity; judges and witnesses; ethics; injury; theft; deposits; sale; agency and partnership; borrowing and lending; deeds; inheritance and orphans; and mourning. ultra-orthodox, mainly in Jerusalem, who regard the establishment of a secular Jewish state in Erez Israel as a sin and a denial of God, and therefore do not recognize the State of Israel. Their name, which is Aramaic for "guardians of the City, " derives from a passage in the Jerusalem Talmud (Hag. 76: 3) stating that religious scholars are the guardians and defenders of the city. Neturei Karta broke away from Agudat Israel in 1935, when the latter attempted to restrain extremist demands for an independent ultra-Orthodox Jerusalem community completely separate from the rest of the Zionist community. The group first adopted the name Hevrat ha-Hayyim, after Rabbi Joseph Hayyim Sonnenfeld. It aimed at creating "a circle free from the influence of the contemporary spirit and its fallacious opinions, " and a condition of membership was "the education of sons and daughters in the traditional Jewish manner, without any change (girls' schools which teach Hebrew do not provide education in the traditional Jewish manner). " The last phrase alluded to Agudat Israel's Bet Ya'akov girls' schools, where the language of instruction is Hebrew.
